Barry-Long Vote in Boston Wards

406 MOCRATS

306 ISOLATED

PLEDGE BEATEN

Augustus P. Gardner of Hamilton, Congressman from the Sixth district, in the Republican candidate for Governor of Massachusetts.

With six towns and a few wards in seven cities to be heard from, Congressman Gardner leads in the primary election over Colonel Everett C. Boston by 4,600 votes. The totals:

Augustus P. Gardner.....45,920
Everett C. Boston.....30,220

Former member of the Governor's Council, Edward P. Barry of South Boston, with the same six towns and a few wards in seven cities to be heard from, defeated Richard H. Long of Framingham for the Democratic nomination for Lieutenant-Governor by 7,220. The vote:

Edward P. Barry.....37,320
Richard H. Long.....30,100

The Republican contest for the nomination for Governor, and the Democratic struggle for the prize of being the party candidate for second place on the ticket, afforded the sole State-wide interest to the quietest and least vote, casting district primaries, that Massachusetts ever saw.

Gardner Cuts Loose.

Both Democrats and Republicans had voted candidates for nomination a State President. Frederick W. Mansfield of Boston easily defeated Joseph L. P. St. Pierre for the Democratic nomination.

Charles L. Burdett of Boston was elected by over 10,000 votes to the Democratic nomination for Governor.

Congressman Gardner announced that he will make the campaign on a personal platform of his own, and early today sent himself off from the Republican State organization, so far as the management of his campaign is concerned.

The nomination of Gardner followed a campaign of less than a month. The candidate candidate announced himself in liberal Republican and will conduct his campaign as a Progressive within the party.

The nomination by the Democrats of Edward P. Barry for Lieutenant-Governor, and of Richard H. Long for Governor, was about the same vote of time as that of Congressman Gardner's.

Barry opposed by the Democratic organization only Democratic leaders. He conducted a personal campaign throughout the State and won.

The prizes eligible to private life Democratic Senators and Representatives in large numbers voted for the Western Territory Bill over the vote of the Democrats.

McDevitt Not "Vindicated."

Surprises were afforded in many Congressional and Senatorial districts. Edward D. Collins of Boston was defeated for a Democratic nomination by Congressman Timothy J. Buckley of Boston.

Former Representative David W. McDevitt of Hyde Park defeated John J. McDevitt for the Democratic nomination for the Senate in the Quaker district.

McDevitt made his campaign for a "win or small loss" in the Quaker district.

State Commissioner and ward committee for the vote of the State were without contest.

HAL NABOLEON AS NEWER IN COMIC OPERA

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

It's a good thing that doesn't lead to a duffy affair or a bit of scandal, by which you may infer that "The Purple Road" is a comedy.

Twenty-one of the Democratic Senators and Representatives who took their party's side in joining the New Haven strike, today left over the Governor's veto will not be found in official place on Beacon Hill next week.

Forty-four went down to defeat in the primaries and seven died to cover by withdrawing.

In the Democratic primaries, however, a greater part of the renegades who abandoned their party platform and their solemn pledge for the selfish interests of the New Haven railroad have been re-elected. Some nominations are still in doubt.

Roosevelt Visits Old Butler in Jail

Renews Quest for $700 Jade Ring Among $10,000 Loot.

MINNEAPOLIS, N. Y., Sept. 24.—Theodore Roosevelt today, following a visit to the Nassau County Jail, is making a renewed effort to trace a $700 jade ring and a gold pin, two pieces of the $10,000 worth of jewelry stolen from his home in Sagamore Hill several weeks ago.

General R. Parker, the Roosevelt family butler, arrested after the robbery, and whom he was made to confess if his former employer would agree to interview him. Parker told Mr. Roosevelt he had lost the ring and had turned the job over to a Brooklyn friend.

Theodore Roosevelt is now in New York City, where he is making a renewed effort to trace the jewelry.

PAUKURST TO REFUSE TO BE MUZZLED HERE

PARIS, Sept. 24.—News cablegrams telling of adverse criticism directed against Mrs. Emmeline Paukurst by her sisters in the United States will not deter the founder of militancy from making her proposed trip across the Atlantic to make speeches. Christabel Paukurst, speaking for her mother, today declared that Mrs. Paukurst is too strong willed to be moved by harsh criticism.

She said: "If suffrage regulations in the United States refuse to invite my mother to speak under their auspices, she will deliver independent addresses. My mother has too much independence of purpose and is too courageous to be discouraged by the remarks of a few women who are halfhearted to the great cause. So far as I know there are no American laws to prevent my mother from talking wherever she wants to and she will do that to spite of any opposition."

CRUELTY TO WIFE DENIED BY ROSEBERRY

Mr. Wm. Roseberry, after being told by his wife and wife's doctor, that she was in a state of mind to be put in a hospital, denied the charge of cruelty to his wife. He said that he had never laid hands on her with except in affectionate and loving embrace.

It was my habit, he continued, "to kiss my wife and children when I left in the morning and when they were there to receive me when I returned. On August 6, 1912, I kissed her goodnight in the hall and gave her money and a message as she was leaving for Vermont. She said that she was going to Vermont to help me pick out a home where we would live some time instead of with Mr. and Mrs. Bond."

According to testimony, the next thing Roseberry knew was that his wife had been taken to the hospital. He said that he was not in the house at the time, but was in the city of New York.

STABBING OF MALDEN NURSE Baffles Hunt

Miss Marie L. Robinson, the Malden Hospital nurse, stabbed by a sublight machine gun last night, police are doing their best to find the person who did it. The nurse was stabbed in the back and the person who did it was seen running away.

It had been suggested by one of the officers in the case that the man might have been a patient, and that his manner of talking was to throw anyone who tried to stop him.

Miss Robinson, however, says the man who stabbed her was not a patient. She said that she was in the hospital at the time, and that she was not a patient.

It is admitted that the hospital authorities have not yet been able to determine how the attack could have been made by one not associated with the hospital. The man who gave the nurse the knife was seen running away.

Francis Ouimet Says: FEW REALIZE DIFFERENCE IN MATCH AND MEDAL PLAY

By FRANCIS OUIMET.

Francis Ouimet

There are few golfers who realize what a great difference there is between match and medal play, but medal scoring is a much different game altogether than a match one.

In the first named style of play the object is to go around the course in the fewest number of strokes, while in the latter, the idea is to win as many holes as possible regardless of what the chance for a fine score might be.

Medal competition means that the player must not take too great chances. When he has a long approach putt to make or a putt, say, of 20 feet he must bear in mind the fact that it is most necessary that he hole out in two putts. First he should try the putt, and, if missed, must still leave the ball in a position to hole the next one.

One extra putt on a green is often quite fatal. Next he must always play well within himself at all times and not try to do the impossible.

Match play is practically the opposite. The player must take chances, such as holing long putts, blazing over the traps or cutting off distances. Anything to give yourself the least advantage over your opponent, unless you have several strokes to spare. If you have two strokes for the hole always take them. If you should get into a sand-trap and waste several strokes in getting out and lose the hole, forget it. There are others following.

Jerome D. Travers is unquestionably the strongest match player, in the amateur ranks, in the United States. He is also a very fine medal player, but not quite as good as in the former. "Chick" Evans is a wonderful medal scorer. John G. Anderson is exceptionally fine at both.

WORCESTER, Sept. 24.—With the strongest lineup in the history of the school, Holy Cross clashed with Norwich University on Milton Field in the first game of the season. Every attempt was made by the coaches in charge of the Worcester squad to capture a victory.

The final practice for today's game was held under direction of Coach Kersburg and Dave Campbell of Boston on the college grounds, the squad being given nearly two hours of hard work, including several hard scrimmages, with the second team. During the scrimmages with the second team, the Holy Cross showed great improvement in the backfield and tackling department, while the ends and lines could not have possibly given a better accounting of themselves.

Tom McCole, the former Connecticut Latin player and whitewash and at Worcester, was slated to pull off a drive back over the two during the four periods today besides shining in the capacity of left end.

Nine men and all stars of last season's Purple eleven started the game with Norwich today, and when some are necessary they will be replaced by some of the novices and fastest future prep school players in New England.

Plan Stiff Workout for Harvard Eleven

Two More Scrimmages and Then a Rest—Pennock Out of Game with Injury.

By SYDIE LYNES.

STIFF scrimmages today and tomorrow, and then a rest for the big eleven over the river, with the opening game on Saturday against Maine, is the program for the remainder of the week of the Harvard team, which has already had one stiff workout to its credit. Harvard must enter the initial contest with at least one man shy, for Pennock is out of the game for a couple of weeks with an injured shoulder. It would not have been so bad, had the big fellow been hurt in action, but to be laid out when every game is so important is a serious blow. The fact that the Harvard team is so well off in the line when he will be needed is a serious blow.

CHANCE FOR SUBSTITUTES.
LOOKING at the matter from the other viewpoint, Pennock's injury and forced idleness will be a blessing. Not to him, to be given the chance to fill his shoes. With him playing constantly, and he is a man who is practically never replaced, his side would not have the best of opportunities to show their mettle in his berth, and would not be able to get the actual fighting experience they are now going to get. Weston, who took Pennock's place in the first scrimmage, showed up fairly well, and with plenty of work and regularity, which he is certain to get under the Harvard regime, he will doubtless be able to replace Pennock satisfactorily, whenever it is found necessary, later on. The stiff charges too high on the offense, with the result that he does not get very far, but seems to have plenty of faith, and that counts for a great deal.

GREAT POWER IN CHARGING.
THE scrimmage showed up a number of good points about the crimson eleven. Harvard eleven, together with faults that must necessarily be expected in the team at this stage of the game. One good point was a display of great power in charging, something apparently inherited from the eleven of last year. The line, with one or two exceptions, charged low and hard. Trumbull showed up very well at center, where he managed to snap the ball and open a hole in the line. The move of the coaches in placing him at the great position seems to have been a wise one. We have to hand it to Coach Haughton. He knows his business.

Cowan, the new guard, was a little awkward and needs a deal of training, but he has the making of a good guard. He is fast, and can take a hole and keep his opponent out of the way with the best of them.

IS DOUBT ABOUT DANA.
DANA, the new end, is still an unknown factor, but Milholland, who took his place, pulled off as pretty a trick of a forward pass as has been seen in many a day, and executed a nifty cross through a broken field, for a touchdown, during twenty-five yards for six of the first ninety seconds of the game.

One of the six players, executed the pass in beautiful style. Milholland had over on the ball and did a hardward kick to get it, but he hung on, and in doing so took the second team so by surprise that they did not get their ball back quickly enough to stop him.

Incidentally, the second eleven have shown fair scoring ability, composed of black jerseys, in celebration of the birthday of the slinger of their ranks by the variety eleven. Some say the black jerseys are worn for the purpose of distracting the eyes of the opposing players, but you and I realize the true significance of the color.

WATCH "TACKS" HARDWICK.
BRICKLEY'S drop kick from the twenty-five yard line, when the variety has been somewhat after a series of rushes from their own thirty-five yard line to the second team's twenty-five yard line, was a well timed and pretty executed kick, and in fact, the best of the game. It was a hard kick, but, between you and me, the line was just a bunch that Hardwick is going to be the man that will be talked about this year. He was the life of the variety attack in the scrimmage, and went after the line as though he had never stopped his work of last year.

BACKS INTERFERED POOR.
THE backs did not give each other particularly good interference, but that will soon change. The men did not hang together as well as they should have done, second team men frequently falling through and hurrying Freedy and Logan in their efforts to keep their backs on their feet. On the whole, the work of the team was rather good, but not as good as it has been in other years at the time. It would not be surprising if it doesn't make an All-American back. It won't, it is too early to tell.

Yale and Cornell are the first of the big college football teams to get into action this year. They open their season today, the former meeting Wesleyan at New Haven and the latter opposing Ursinus in the home field in Ithaca, N. Y.

It was expected that Yale would not be at least twenty players this afternoon in order to distribute practice over all of the members of the first squad as possible.

The coaches said they would pay special attention to the work of Wilson, the new quarterback, who is heralded as the find of the season.

Today's contest is the first under the new coaching system at Yale which dispenses with the old powers of having a graduating captain become the next coach.

A conference of nearly 150 football players, coaches and officials was held at the Manhattan Hotel for the purpose of interpreting the 1913 rules. Walter Crompton, the most important rule change was concerning the inside kick. The attacking players holding the ball when it is kicked not only are unable and disabled to catch the ball before it reaches the opponent, but also must try to get the ball even should a member of the defending team signal for a fair catch.

Some Good Boxing in Store for Local Fans

Atlas Club Has Arranged a Very Attractive Card for Tomorrow Night

By JACK CONWAY.

BOSTON boxing fans will have an opportunity to see some good fighters in action at the Atlas A. A. tomorrow night. The athletic club arranged by Melrose and John McNamara has secured some considerable interest among local boxing fans at least one of two of the contests should be exciting affairs.

The Atlas shows are very popular in Boston. The reason is because the fighters who perform have not only world-wide reputations and as a consequence are willing to fight. The principals are either young, ambitious men who are willing to risk their lives or else veterans who must perform at their very best or be given in the contest.

The feature will tomorrow night will be between "Irish Kid" Callahan of Brooklyn and Al Tullman of this city. Callahan is well known in the "game" of this city and has engaged in many hard battles in New England rings.

Callahan is said to be a powerful boxer. His coach friend would not dispute that he is a ring warrior. The Brooklyn lad, however, can punch hard with either hand and we have seen on the street that the average boxing fan has seen more about Callahan than about scientific boxing.

Callahan needs no introduction. He is a veteran of the ring and has fought many of the best fighters. Callahan will probably enter the ring a favorite but should not be taken for granted.

CHICK RIGGS FIGHTER.
THE second round of interest will be between Joe Chick of Gloucester and "Young" Jasper of this city. These two welterweights fought the second bout at the Atlas Club last night. Jasper, who is known as "Young" Jasper, was the victor in the first round.

The opening round will be between Noah Brown of Melrose and Al McCoy of Waltham. Brown is a rough, tough fellow and a good value fighter. McCoy is a rough, tough fellow and a good value fighter. McCoy is a rough, tough fellow and a good value fighter.

MORRIS YATES OF BOSTON.
WHEN Al Bates, former welterweight champion, was knocked out in two rounds by Carl Morris, several prominent New York critics charged that Bates had not won the championship fight. The critics asked Morris whether he thought Bates had won and he said: "I don't know, but I don't think I lost."

Al Bates fought his hardest in the fight with Morris and did not lose in the second round. He was knocked out. Bates is a fine looking fellow and a good value fighter. Bates is a fine looking fellow and a good value fighter.

BRAMER REIDES, MANAGER.
I had Bates properly studied and for when I met him he tried to tempt his left hand punch to the stomach and I really scored a dream victory in the five with my right.

"The match, of course, was a joke. I never think it seriously. Bates is a promising young boxer but he has not had sufficient experience to hold his own with a man who has been boxing as long as I have."

It was not my duty, however, to advise Bates. That was up to his manager and the promoters.

Southwick Garments are not intended to enter into competition with the branded factory product. There is no basis for competition. They can serve only to stimulate the ambition of the clothing manufacturer at large and the envy of the tape-string-tailor.

Designed specifically for the discerning man—Who resents the tyranny of the tape-string-tailor, the cost and annoyance of his errors—

Who cannot bring himself to accept a garment yanked from a pile stacked like flamed-eggs, a replica of which he is apt to meet decorating the person of a "submerged-tenth"—

Who has nothing in common with the ninety-and-nine—for the hundredth man.

Such are Southwick Garments.

Increase Our Merchant
Marine

"We believe in fostering, by constitutional regulation of commerce, the growth of a merchant marine which shall develop and strengthen the commercial ties which bind us to our sister republics of the South, but without imposing additional burdens upon the people and without bounties from the public treasury."

This declaration, by the Democratic National Convention of 1913, is the latest official expression of Democratic principle, binding upon all Democrats elected to office who are in a position to secure its adoption.

Under the leadership of Oscar W. Underwood the House of Representatives endeavored to fulfill its obligations in this respect by providing a discount of 5 per cent. of the duty on imports in vessels admitted to American registration, conformably to the provisions of the Constitution of the United States, "without imposing additional burdens upon the people and without bounties from the public treasury."

But the Senate was advised by the State Department that a 5 per cent. discount confined to imports in vessels under American registration would violate treaties and conventions now in force between the United States and other nations.

Two courses then remained open: 1. To provide for the termination of all of these entangling treaties and conventions, and leave the United States free to readopt the constitutional method of regulating its commerce with foreign countries.

Or, 2. To strike out the section and abandon the effort to build up our marine in foreign trade.

This latter course would be most pleasing to foreign nations whose ships now monopolize nine-tenths of our foreign carrying.

For reasons sufficient for those in control of the Senate the latter course was followed, and the discount section dropped. Nor did the Senate offer any alternative plan for building up our shipping in foreign trade.

Seemingly no effort is to be made, by proper declaration, as provided in these treaties and conventions, for the United States to give notice of its intention to terminate them.

The tariff bill, with the House discount section stricken from it, is now in the hands of the House and Senate conferees for the adjustment of the differences arising from the Senate's changes in the measure.

On September 16 the AMERICAN suggested an expedient that would, to a limited extent, BUT TO SOME EXTENT, enable Congress to put into partial effect a constitutional regulation of our commerce with foreign nations helpful to American shipping, and in a manner not open to the charge of violating existing treaties and conventions, as follows:

I Subsection 7. That a discount of 5 per centum on all duties imposed by this Act shall be allowed on such goods, wares and merchandise as shall be imported in vessels built in the United States.

This retains the language of the House tariff bill as Mr. Underwood introduced it in that body on April 7, except that it omits from the end the words, "owned by a citizen or citizens thereof," WHICH WORDS, the State Department contends, WOULD CONSTITUTE THE VIOLATION OF TREATIES AND CONVENTIONS, if limited only to vessels so owned.

The substitute the AMERICAN has presented is not in favor of American-OWNED vessels, alone, which treaties and conventions forbid, but it is in favor of American-BUILT vessels, which treaties and conventions in force do not forbid.

A citizen of any nation may have a vessel built in this country and run her in our foreign trade, and receive the same discount as an American owner.

The last remnant of American shipping in foreign trade is engaged in carrying between the United States and the northern part of South America, Central America, Mexico and the West Indies, a survival due to the fact that such American vessels may operate in and out of our coast trade when cargoes are unobtainable in foreign trade, a privilege our laws have denied to foreign vessels for a century past.

In the trade between the United States and South America last year 3,489,468 tons of vessels, sail and steam, with cargoes and in ballast, entered the United States, of which 137,813 (or 4 PER CENT.) WERE AMERICAN. In the trade with Central America, Mexico and the West Indies there entered 7,992,852 tons of vessels, of which 2,292,729 (or 28 PER CENT.) WERE AMERICAN.

It is probable that American vessels will not be able to capture the carrying of this hemisphere until an extra duty of, say, 10 per cent. shall be placed upon imports in vessels not built in the United States.

This would make it applicable to all of our imports, instead of only those dutiable.

But this is contrary to the present Democratic trend, and so, conforming to the policy of a discount of the duty applicable only to dutiable imports, and in order to make a beginning of progress, we urge this modification of the discriminating duty section of the tariff bill as introduced in the House. It is a modification suggested merely to avoid even the appearance of a violation of treaties and conventions, and it should leave no loophole for any Democrat to refuse to join in the fulfillment of a Democratic promise made when last appealing to the people for endorsement of Democracy and its policies.

The people are supremely interested in observing how sincere Democratic promises and professions are on the subject of American shipping revival in foreign trade, when Democrats in control of both branches of Congress are in a position to put into effect, TO A NO-

TABLE EXTENT, a constitutional policy for the regulation of our foreign trade, so as to build up the upbuilding of American deep-sea shipping, give employment to thousands of skilled men in building and running ships under the American flag, strengthen a great arm of the national defense, and extend our foreign trade under the American flag.

Either that, or, by failing to do anything by an indefensible policy of negotiation, safeguard and perpetuate foreign shipping in its present monopoly of the great bulk of our foreign carrying.

Once more, and most earnestly, the AMERICAN urges Senators Simmons, Williams, Shively and Johnson, of the Senate Conferees, and Representatives Kitchin, Rainey and Dixon, of the House Conferees, to unite with Oscar Underwood in reporting this splendid American measure and giving new life to the vital body of an American commerce.

Millions of Men Are Working, Struggling to Make of Their Sons the Thing That You See at the Top of This Page

Copyright, 1913, by Hearst Corporation

Two forces are at work in this world—the forces of GATHERING, which build up, and the forces of SCATTERING, which tear down.

On the edge of an African desert a small lion cub waits for its mother to come home with a dead antelope.

Later you might see that cub, a young lion, going out to hunt, following timidly behind the mother lioness.

Again you would see him a huge beast, with heavy mane, hunting on his own account and able to pull down any animal except the elephant and rhinoceros.

Still later you would see him, his days of GATHERING ended, stretched on the ground, dead.

In the evening he would be there complete, and in the morning there would be nothing but white bones.

The jackals that whined and fawned around him living, would tear his hide and flesh. Some heavy jawed hyena would drive them away and eat his all.

Flies would lay their eggs in the dead carcass, ants and many different insects would eat their share.

And the sun that saw a dead lion in the evening would see a lion's skeleton in the morning—the power that gathered, now SCATTERED.

Look at the picture on this page, before you read the rest of this editorial, and write or think out YOUR OWN EDITORIAL about it. Once more we say that TEN MINUTES' THINKING OF YOUR OWN IS WORTH TEN HOURS OF READING.

Does this picture remind you in any way of the story of the lion cub? It should do so.

You may see in this country a little business man waiting for business and HIS START. He is the cub.

And you may see him later timidly hunting behind others for the business man's prey, MONEY.

Later you can see him, full fledged, hunting and getting millions on his own account.

And still later you see his picture in the newspapers, read his will, and know that he is a dead lion.

His days of gathering are ended, and the days of scattering begin. The scatters are the boy sitting beside the gamblers' tape, whiskey on his left hand and the gambling machine on the right.

The scattering is not done in a day. The bones of the big fortune are not picked bare over night. But the work is just as sure and certain in the clubroom, where the young man sits, as it is under a thorn bush where the dead lion lies.

The jackals, the hyenas, the mice, the flies and the ants combine to pick the bones of the old lion.

So the hyenas and jackals of the human race hasten to pick the bones of the dead millionaire and divide the fortune represented and "owned" by the poor little creature in this picture who was "to live happily" as the result of his father's hard work.

This is a good picture to show to your son, and a good picture for you, the serious citizen, to think over and take into account.

We reproduce it from an article by Frederick Townsend Martin entitled "The Morality of the Idle Rich," published in the September number of Hearst's Magazine.

Mr. Martin KNOWS the idle rich, he is related to many of them. He has struggled hard and persistently NOT TO BE ONE OF THEM.

What Mr. Martin has to say about the scum that floats idly on the top of our civilization, scum that we call SOCIETY, is interesting.

What YOU will THINK about his article, and what you think and express in your own brain about this picture is more important to you than what any other person writes.

Do you realize what a fortunate thing it is that the four-legged hyenas pick the bones of the dead lion, and that the two-legged hyenas—the gamblers, the money lenders, the swindlers of all kinds—pick the financial bones of the dead millionaire?

His life earth would be unmitigated if all the dead lions, elephants and giraffes remained piled up on the desert sands, and if all the dead lions were piled mountain high on our western prairies.

Nature, fortunately, destroys and scatters that which has answered its purpose and is dead. And so the world keeps fresh, beautiful, clean and full of energy—free of rotten decay.

It is lucky that the accumulated fortunes piled up by useful productive energy were not left to pile up and encumber the earth.

Once in a while, it is true, you find a mammoth frozen in the ice, fish, hair, hoofs and tusks, just as he was a thousand centuries ago, or you find a mummified body skillfully defying decay in Egypt. But that is also an exception.

Occasionally, also, you find a big fortune preserved, used as a playground, for the more or less vicious amusement of incompetent idlers, but THAT is also an exception.

As a rule the big body of a fortune disappears as completely as the body of the dead lion.

That is an extremely good thing for this world.

This means that intelligence is kept working. It means that the rich fall, luckily, in their effort to make work unnecessary for their descendants.

If it were possible for the prosperous to carry out their plans, if our wise forefathers had not passed laws against entail, and if the foolish waste and weakness of the idle rich did not make the quick scattering of their fortunes the almost invariable rule, conditions in America would be as unpleasant as they would be in Africa, if the dead bodies of all the animals were lying around instead of being eaten and scattered.

We should have in this country—except for spendthrift weakness—a great idle, self-indulgent, non-productive, arrogant and vicious class living upon the workers.

Whereas now, we have only a thin scum of idle wealth floating on the top of the social soup pot.

And this scum is skimmed off over and over by panics and gambling and folly. And it amounts to little.

Thinking about this picture we should realize the wisdom of nature, which scatters and dissolves into its original elements the body of a dead animal, making over the dead flesh into living tissue.

And we should admire, also, that wisdom which will not permit accumulated capital to remain dead and useless, but condemns it to a process of distribution and disintegration that restores it to useful productive work.

HIGH SALARIES AND MEN'S CAPACITY.

Editor Boston AMERICAN:

Dear Sir: I wish to express my feeling for the editorial in the issue of Friday, September 19, concerning high salaries and men's capacity. We have had it dinged into our ears so long that brains are the important to discuss, so that it is quite refreshing to see somebody point out the fact that men of no great ability do attain financial success. And it is not a fact that men of men of great ability, men of great capacities, do not attain to even a competency!

It is not labor in this system of capitalist exploitation that men of men ability will ignore the rules of fair play and advance or be pushed into place of responsibility and trust, while better and more capable men are left in the ranks of the wage-slaves, instead of the salaried staff.

Soldier, Me. O. F. B. SOLDIER TO CONGRESSMAN.

Editor Boston AMERICAN:

Dear Sir:—In answer to the statement that "Army men are leaders and parasites," which is credited to Congressman George H. Sherman of Toledo, Ohio, it is doubtful if the Congressman realizes that he is a parasite on the entire Army by a few Congressmen Sherman and soldiers are far better than the industrial workers. Does he know a soldier is entitled to the large 150 sum of 27 cents a day for rations?

ALL SOLDIERS ARE NOT PERFECT. If a "batter" does not care to do his duty, or refuse to do what is right, it is given a dishonorable discharge. There is no great inducement to the entire Army by a few Congressmen Sherman and soldiers are far better than the industrial workers. Does he know a soldier is entitled to the large 150 sum of 27 cents a day for rations?

AN EX-SOLDIER.

Editor Boston AMERICAN:

Dear Sir:—With reference to your editorial regarding Harry K. Thaw, I take this opportunity to publicly commend them, as they certainly state the facts. In my estimation, the citizens of the United States ought to protect Thaw's treatment very strongly.

M. E. H.
